The Tideswell at UCSF, AGS and ADGAP Emerging Leaders in Aging Scholar Program is designed for advanced junior or mid-career health professionals with a clear commitment to the field of aging and a leadership role in a clinical, research, education or policy program focused on advancing the care of older adults. It is for those seeking to transform the field and lead the next generation of health professionals. We welcome applications from health professionals including, but not limited to physicians, nurses, pharmacists, psychologists, social workers, physical and occupational therapists, and non-clinicians with evidence of training or experience in aging. An academic affiliation is not required.

The program, designed to enhance and leverage existing leadership skills, consists of activities from September to May, with the anticipation that the community of scholars will remain meaningful colleagues throughout their careers.

Program components:

- A two-day workshop in Sausalito, CA on November 28th to November 30th, 2018;
- Six monthly 1-hour small-group videoconferences with senior advisors and including independent readings and assignments;
- Completion of a Practicum Project with individual mentorship from program senior advisors and a local institution mentor selected by the applicant;
- A two-day workshop that includes a presentation of your Practicum to AGS leaders, on April 29th – April 30th 2019, preceding the 2019 AGS Annual Meeting in Portland, OR.

APPLY NOW!

Applications are due by January 8, 2018. Applicants selected through a competitive process will be notified in April prior to the AGS Annual Meeting.
